

Improving business performance through effective human capital practices

Hewitt

Michael Page International and Hewitt Associates invite you to a presentation from Carl Redondo, Lead Consultant on effective Human Capital Practices for your organisation.

With Human Capital being seen increasingly as the business differentiator for many organisations, Hewitt's research sheds light on what this means in practice. The findings from the 2009 "Best Employers Study" gives insight into how the best companies maximise business contribution from their people. The role of an effective HR Director is becoming ever more strategic and a key part of this is making the link between good HR practices and improved business performances. Hewitt's presentation will use case studies to show the process of linking business performance to HR practices and how it can be measured.
